business area that we might have missed. I have tasked IMS/CIO to respond on behalf of the Agency to the President's Assistant via the Office of Homeland Security on the status of CIA's reexamination of our review and release procedures.

3. All agencies and departments are charged to consider the need to safeguard WMD and other sensitive information on an ongoing basis. Although the appropriate steps for safeguarding sensitive information may vary according to the information, the attached guidance and contact points are helpful. In addition, IMS/CIO is working with the Information Security Oversight Office (ISOO) and other agencies to ensure the revised Executive Order 12958 "Classified National Intelligence Information" includes reclassification authority and enhanced language within the Order to safeguard WMD and other sensitive information. Any additional guidance developed within the community or received will be shared with you.

4. Please advise the IMS/CIO action officer, [ ] via your Information Review Officer (IRO) if you have questions regarding the attachments. If your components need classification management, records management, or review/release guidance and assistance as they review their procedures in light on the new guidance, please engage your IROs and Information Management Officers (IMOs).
